Prasant has shipped production React applications and worked with frontend teams ranging from solo developers to large engineering orgs. Build Your First Website is structured around the decisions he makes daily — component design, state management, and the reasoning behind each.

He believes modern frontend development is genuinely hard, and that most courses underestimate how much clarity comes from understanding the "why" behind framework choices. This course prioritises that clarity over breadth.

QuriousAcademy

Focused, live learning for curious minds. No fluff — just the concepts that matter.
